1/4/2013	25:00	1225	The shootings at an elementary school in Newtown, Connecticut stopped a nation in its tracks – leading us to look again at our gun laws, at our failures in dealing with mental health issues and maybe, just maybe, preparing us to find answers that prevent a future tragedy. What’s shocking is that this was just another in a very long list of horrific school shootings – shootings that have been happening for generations. Rebecca Coffey is a journalist who’s investigated the history of school shootings in her book, Murders Most Foul: and the School Shooters in Our Midst. Sometimes, when we’re lucky, police are able to intervene before a tragedy happens. But it takes training, and understanding, to de-escalate a crisis. Chicago Police officer Julie Joyce specializes in these tense situations. Joe DeCeault of WBEZ explains she’s got a special relationship with these kids. A diagnosis of childhood ADHD – attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, is a growing trend – with the Center for Disease Control reporting numbers increasing by more than 5% a year. In 2007, parents reported almost ten percent of children under the age of 17 were diagnosed with ADHD. The CDC estimates one in 88 children in the US is born with an Autism Spectrum Disorder... anything from mild Asperger’s to severe Autism. Other statistics estimate that at any time, one in ten children and adolescents is affected by a serious emotional disturbance. Our schools are struggling to meet the needs of all their students...but it’s clearly not a one size fits all population. In the rural Onteora School District in New York’s Catskills region, there’s a program called MAPS – the Management Attention Program Special class...and it’s finding and helping kids early. Cindy Bishop is Director of Pupil Personnel Services.
1/11/2013	25:00	1226	Noel Carmichael is an American in Africa. She moved to Tanzania after recovering from cancer, determined to change her life. She’s certainly succeeded. But while working to improve nutrition for children in Africa, she’s also learning things about herself...and about what we as Americans take for granted. As we settle into a new year, she’s got a viewpoint worth hearing. Food is a global issue of key importance. The US is the world’s leading corn producer...and that corn is in demand in countries with growing middle classes...like China and India. They rely on Midwestern grain to feed their livestock as the demand for meat grows. Amy Mayer reports for Harvest Public Media that grain won’t meet the needs of the nine billion people expected to be on the earth by 2050. In Iraqi Kurdistan, a familiar transition is playing out. Once a lush agricultural region, the area now buys its food from elsewhere and trades in a more profitable commodity – oil. War News Radio’s Amy DiPierro has more. Freedom of the press is something we take for granted. In Colombia, however, reporting the news could get you killed. Journalist Leiderman Ortiz Berrio in September reported he’d learned of a plot to assassinate him. He’s been reporting on criminal gangs, kidnappings and extortion in a country notorious for its organized crime. Nadja Drost of the World Vision Report has more.
1/18/2013	25:00	1227	There’s a crisis brewing with a symbol of the American west. More than 50 thousand wild horses, protected by law, have been rounded up and moved to enclosed pastures to make way for cattle. But the US Bureau of Land Management says the wild horse

			population is growing at an unmanageable rate – and advocates for the mustangs say that the government’s approach is both ineffective and cruel. Holding pens are at or near capacity and the cost of caring for the captive horses is skyrocketing. Right now, more than 37 thousand wild horses and burros live on federal rangeland in ten western states. That’s more than ten thousand more than the bureau says it can handle. Suzanne Roy is director of the American Wild Horse Preservation Campaign. They advocate better management and, when necessary, contraception, but criticize the rounding up and removal of the herds as cruel and unnecessary. The government agency argues that though some horses and foals do die during the helicopter roundups, the current system is the only option. Meanwhile, the United Nations is looking at expanding the list of endangered species. Polar bears, sharks and Madagascan hardwood timber are among several animal and plant species that are being proposed to be added to the list of protected plants and animals. Another creature facing a serious threat is one you’d think could take care of itself – the rhinoceros. New figures released by the UN and and South Africa's Department of Environmental Affairs show the number of rhino being poached has reached record levels. In the wild, it is estimated there are just 20 thousand white rhinos...and only five thousand black rhinos. They had just bounced back from a significant decline, but UN Radio’s Julie Walker reports a new wave of poaching is threatening them again. If we’re going to care about threatened species, we need to understand them. Public radio’s Ari Daniel Shapiro hosts a series called One Species at a Time... for the Encyclopedia of Life - and in this segment, he gets to know one of the largest, and least understood, of earth’s creatures. And finally, let’s turn to a creature that is not the endangered – but the predator. It’s the sea lamprey – an invasive species that has had one of the biggest impacts on Lake Superior - an issue explored by Barbara Jean Johnson and Kelly Schoenfelder of WTIP North Shore Community Radio for the 26 part Lake Superior Project.
1/25/2013	25:00	1228	No matter how fiscally conservative you are, your credit score matters. Whether you’re buying a car, a house or buying a new refrigerator with a store credit card, your credit score will determine your interest rate. According to a survey done by a Boston bank, there are over 600 million credit cards holders in the US. And in households with ongoing credit card debt, the average balance is over fifteen thousand dollars. Medicine, we’re usually discussing herbs or something outside traditional Western medicine. But when Julia Schopick talks about alternative medicine, she’s talking about FDA approved medicines and treatments that doctors just don’t commonly use. Her book, Honest Medicine, is the result of discovering an effective treatment for her husband, then having his doctors show no interest in it. Finally, Gilles Malkine is back with one of the more dramatic turnarounds in women’s history... a woman who started life with few prospects, but who eventually championed women’s rights. Gilles Malkine is a writer and musician who lives in New York’s Catskill mountains.

Phyllis Bennis directs the New Internationalism Project at the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington and is a Fellow at the Transnational Institute in the Netherlands. And she's authored several books on the UN and global issues. She will be in Albany, New York speaking at the State University at Albany and the Albany Public Library on February 6th. When the Russian government announced its ban on American adoptions of Russian children at the beginning of the year, it set off protests in Moscow and a huge outcry in the states. The ban is seen as a political move, and writer Tina Traster, the author of a book about her own experience adopting a Russian child, said it's a huge mistake that hurts the children as well as parents hoping to adopt. And finally, I would like to introduce you to Sumayah Hodges of Las Vegas, Nevada. She's the owner of a beauty salon and the proud mom of a college student. She's got a dream – she wants to be the commencement speaker at her daughter's graduation. And she wants your help. Sumayah Hodges has started Sumayah Takes Flight on Facebook and Twitter in an effort to be selected as commencement speaker when her daughter graduates from Spellman University.
2/8/2013	25:00	1230	When President Barack Obama took the oath of office for the second time, he's followed it with an address that signaled a clear focus on progressive issues. Gun violence, gay rights, climate change, voting reform, immigration – and equal pay – it's a list of priorities that got the attention of conservatives across the country. But let's break it down and look at just one issue – wage equity. It's still an issue in America in 2013, 50 years after the passage of the Equal Pay Act. This year's Equal Pay Day is April 9 – symbolizing how far into 2013 women have to work to earn what men earned in 2012. A new study indicates women make just 77 cents to a dollar made by men, and the numbers are even worse for women of color. Sarah Crawford is Director of Workplace Fairness at the National Partnership for Women and Families, which commissioned the study. Want to educate yourself on the wage gap? Go to the National Committee on Pay Equity's website at pay-equity.org and also go to the National Partnership for Women and Families website at nationalpartnership.org Women for Women International estimates that seventy percent of the world's poor are women. Seventy percent of the casualties in recent global conflicts are women – both during and after wars. The World Health Organization reports that in 10 developing countries, anywhere from 15 to 71 percent of women between the ages of 15 to 49 reported having experienced physical or sexual violence by an intimate partner. In the US, women are more likely to finish school and get a college education, yet they will earn less than men. So why wouldn't you be a feminist? And yet it's a term that makes many people uncomfortable. Filmmaker Jennifer Lee created her new film, Feminist: Stories from Women's Liberation, to try to understand. Finally, we're all familiar with ninjas. Women, we know, lived by the samurai code in feudal Japan just as men did. But did you know there were female ninjas? Gilles Malkine joins us with the story of a mysterious woman who organized a secret female army five hundred years ago.

2/15/2013	25:00	1231	On Valentine's Day, we traditionally think about love – but what if you decided to be your own Valentine this year? With so many of us trying to do it all while doing way too much, this year perhaps it's time to stop and look in the mirror – and ask yourself if you're being your own best friend. And if you aren't, what does that teach the next generation? Christine Arylo's book, Madly in Love With Me – The Daring Adventure of Becoming Your Own Best Friend, talks about why you need to love yourself – and how to start. Low self esteem and self-doubt – they're the insidious ailments that afflict just about every kid at some time in his or her life. Toronto-based storyteller Sage Tyrtle remembers a friendship that saved her – and showed her how ugly we can really be. And finally, Valentine's Day has also become V-Day, a day to speak out against violence against women. This year, Carla Goldstein, the co-founder of the Omega Women's Leadership Center in Rhinebeck, NY, says she's going to be part of a global movement to dance her protest.
2/22/2013	25:00	1232	March brings a huge change in the European Union – animal testing for personal products will be banned...and companies that test on animals won't be able to sell their products there. That's bad news for China, which requires animal testing, and many American companies, which cling to testing despite new test which are cruelty free. Pascaline Clerc is senior director for animal research issues at the Humane Society of the United States. It's been a wicked flu season in the Northeast and much of the country. Did you take your garlic? Laurie Steelsmith of Hawaii, a naturopath and author of Great Health Through Natural Choices, maintains that there are lots of things you can do for yourself that don't require a trip to the pharmacy. Finally, social networking is important – and not just for work. When you're a new mother, face to face networking can be a lifesaver. In the city and globally, parents make up the biggest category of meet-up groups on Meetup.com. Correspondent Eli Chen features one of over 400 Mom Meet-ups based in New York City.
3/1/2013	25:00	1233	We live in a rapidly changing world. A study done by the Pew Charitable Trust into the religious beliefs of Americans found that fully one quarter of Americans have left the faith they grew up in, and many have abandoned all organized religion. Catholicism has suffered the greatest net loss, and people who describe themselves as "unaffiliated" now make up sixteen percent of the population. With the resignation of Pope Benedict, the controversy surrounding the role of nuns in the Catholic religion and the ongoing issue of how the church handles a sexual abuse scandal that goes back decades, the next leader of the Catholic church will be leading at a challenging time. But some things endure – like the millions of people who travel to a little cave in France hoping for a miracle. 6 million people come to Lourdes in an average year – 150 years after a little girl named Bernadette claimed to have been visited by the mother of Jesus Christ. Tibet Connection producer Rebecca Novick spoke with Dr. Robert Barnett, Director of the Modern Tibetan Studies Program at Columbia University, and discovered the inspiration for the voluntary burnings actually comes from Chinese propaganda. The Chinese government recently arrested seventy people in ethnically Tibetan areas in an effort to stop the protests. About a hundred people have set themselves on fire since 2009 to protest Chinese rule, and most of them have died. The Chinese government blames American radio for the protests, saying it paints the protesters as heroes. Ciudad Juarez is ground zero in the drug war. The city – which is on the border with the US - had more than 3,000 murders last year – making it the deadliest city in Mexico. The violence has driven most humanitarian and aid groups away. One of the few that remains is Casas por Cristo, or Homes for Christ. Based in El Paso, Texas, Casas por Cristo builds homes on the outskirts of Ciudad Juarez. As Monica Perez Uribe reports, in the communities where Casas por Cristo works, violence is not the only concern. That story comes to us from the World Vision Report. And finally, you have probably heard of Nefertiti. But did you know that she was part of a religious reformation in Egypt? And that she may have actually ruled as a man? Writer and musician Gilles Malkine has more.
3/8/2013	25:00	1234	We hear a lot about political reform – and election and campaign finance reform in particular. This year in New York one race for the state senate was a stunning illustration of just how badly the election process needs review. Former state assemblyman GeorgeAmedore, a Republican, was expected to trounce Democratic challenger Cecilia Tkaczyk for New York's 46th senate district. And though the race was close – closer than anyone expected, it did look like he'd won. In fact, he declared victory and went to Albany to take his seat in the Senate. But a final count of previously challenged paper ballots in January gave the win to Tkaczyk by a nose – and now she's been appointed to committees where her experience with this election will be remembered. Coming up, the US trails in family friendly work policies...and a country where a charge of witchcraft can still be used to take a woman's land. March is women's history month. But there's still no pay equity, only 16% of Fortune 500 company directors are women and just 8% of the Fortune top earners are women. In addition, The United States is one of the only countries in the world that doesn't offer paid parental leave. Veteran public radio reporter Anne Garrels looks at what this means for American families. That report comes to us from Human Rights Watch. 3/15/2013	25:00	1235	During Women's History Month, let's take a moment to consider what might hold women back from positions of leadership. For some, the turning point happens early. A psychologist was shocked at the loss of confidence her daughters experienced when they entered middle school. She co-founded the Young Women's Leadership Program at the University of Virginia, where college women pair with middle school girls to help them reach their potential. After more than a decade, the program is now a national model. Alison Quantz has more. If there's one thing all humans share, it is the need for food. Yet that food can be a wall, an obstacle or a bridge. It can mean survival and health, or contribute to disease and an early death. Food Tank, a think tank devoted to the issues surrounding food, is a new organization hoping to highlight how hunger, obesity, climate change, unemployment, and other problems can be solved by more research and investment in agriculture. I spoke with co-founder Danielle Nierenberg. March is not just a month when we remember women's history or celebrate International Women's Day. Omega Women's Leadership Center director Carla Goldstein says we should be thinking about a collaborative future. And finally, Gilles Malkine closes out this show with a profile of a woman whose musical talent set new standards – and who thankfully can still be heard and seen thanks to modern technology.
3/22/2013	25:00	1236	Eighteen years ago, genetically modified crops were introduced in the United States. First there were tomatoes, then soybeans, potatoes and corn. As the years have passed, more and more farmland has been devoted to these plants, which have a gene added to their DNA, giving them helpful traits such as pesticide resistance. But that help may come with a cost. During that same period, a growing number of children have developed allergies to food. Despite assurances of safety from biotech companies and government agencies, the parallel timing has raised suspicion. Harvest Public Media's Camille Phillips checked out the research. Another cause of problems – particularly respiratory problems, is mold. It's something we didn't know much about ten or fifteen years ago – but now it is a major health issue and part of something we now call sick house syndrome. East Harlem has the highest asthma rates in the country – and it's partially the result of mold in buildings there. Ray Lopez developed asthma as a child in the Bronx. Now he works to help families living in sick housing. There are many treatments for mold in houses – and lots of call for it, thanks to flooding and severe storms across the country. There's an innovative new treatment that uses heat instead of chemicals. I spoke with David Hedman, co-founder of Thermasure, a mold elimination system that uses heat instead of chemicals to kill mold in sick houses.

3/29/2013	25:00	1237	Vice President Joe Biden was a key advocate of the renewal of the Violence Against Women Act – VAWA -in Congress this year – and despite what you might expect would be an easy vote – there was huge debate before it passed. More than 130 House Republicans voted against it. Mai Hernandez of the National Center for Victims of Crime, which was stumping hard for provisions that beefed up the reporting of stalking on college campuses, said it's not surprising that VAWA became a political football. From March 4th to 15th, leaders from all over the globe gathered at the 57th session of the UN Commission on the Status of Women. This year, the focus was violence against women. Deputy Secretary-General of the Council of Europe Gabriella Dragoni spoke with UN Radio's Donn Bob about the importance of creating a legal code that assures the criminality of violence against women. Dragoni said right now those perpetrators are often untouched – and there has to be clear signal that violence against women will be prosecuted. Now - Imagine you're an elderly woman from a small village in Bosnia. You've witnessed horrors most people could never even imagine, and you've been asked to fly half way across the continent to testify before an international court. You may need some convincing. You'll certainly want to see a friendly face. For 15 years, Wendy Lobwein was a witness support officer at the Yugoslav War Crimes Tribunal in the Hague. She helped prepare witnesses to testify, telling them what they could expect from the process. Sometimes she had to persuade frightened witnesses to testify. She told public radio's Amy Costello why their stories had to be told – and why there need to be more women judges on those tribunals.

Issue: Molestation Survivors
Program: Public File 1
Date: January 13, 2013

Description: In her book, the guest asks, "Who are the mothers of molestation survivors?" She asked this question herself to numerous mothers of molested children, as well as many mothers who had themselves been molested in childhood. As a licensed clinical social worker, Johnson has counseled many families through dealing with the after-effects of sexual child abuse. While she realizes the focus should be on the child, she also came to understand that the mothers needed help too, while few resources existed for them. Mothers tend to blame themselves, to feel it is their fault their child was harmed, or that they should have known. Johnson removes the blame by dispelling false beliefs, such as that a mother should know when her child is being abused. She also reveals that mothers of molestation survivors (MOMS as she calls them) have often been abused themselves. Johnson analyzes different types of MOMS, based on numerous interviews with them and interviews with adults who were sexually abused as children; she even provides interviews with a few child molesters so parents will understand what to watch for. Johnson gets at the reasons why different mothers react the way they do, and she provides alternative decisions and suggestions for mothers to teach them to be resourceful and educated; she even addresses the difficult question of where God is in the midst of child abuse.

Issue: Environmental Photography for a Cause
Program: Public File 1
Date: January 20, 2013

Description: Garth's project with Blue Earth continues his work on the threat presented by unsustainable energy development, particularly unconventional fossil fuels. This work comprises both the photographic documentation of these issues, as well as the effective outreach needed to ensure that the resulting images make a positive contribution. From the outset, a central theme of his work has been the contrasts between the industrialized and natural landscape. The primary focus of his early work was forests and the impacts of industrial logging. As his understanding of ecological issues has grown, so has the range of his photographic subjects. His recent work has been largely focused on the world of modern fossil fuel production and its associated impacts on the landscape — including mountaintop removal coal mining, shale gas production, and most recently the Alberta Tar Sands. He will be returning this fall to the Alberta Tar Sands to create new work as well as to give a tour of the area to environmental journalists. Garth's photography of environmental issues, threatened wilderness regions, devastation, and the impacts on indigenous peoples, has appeared in many of the World's leading publications. As an environmental photojournalist, motivated by a deep concern for the environment and the need to protect intact wilderness, working closely with committed activists and knowing that his images will play a significant role in their efforts has been one of the most rewarding and inspiring aspects of his work. His images have helped to shape public opinion and provided organizations with the material they need to advocate in a visually compelling way.

During this time, drivers can expect scheduled DUI checkpoints, roving DUI patrols and enhanced enforcement efforts throughout the state. The crackdown is a statewide effort that spans 42 counties and includes more than 400 law enforcement agencies. The Office of Traffic Safety, California Highway Patrol, and local law enforcement want everyone to drive safely and responsibly. As you travel California's streets and highways, you can do something to help get drunk drivers off the road. Always designate a sober driver, and if you see a drunk driver on the road, call 911. The public can use the emergency number to report and help the CHP identify drunk drivers before it is too late

Issue: Problem Gambling
Program: Public File 1
Date: February 24, 2013

Description: Problem gambling is recognized as a chronic disorder marked by an uncontrollable urge to gamble. The individual cannot stop gambling despite mounting negative consequences to himself/herself. These consequences are usually financial issues that compromise, disrupt or damage personal, family, educational and/or vocational interests. There are many who will experience negative consequences as a result of this insidious disease, including the gamblers themselves, their families and loved ones, and their communities. The OPG's goal is to help problem gamblers and their families by building partnerships in ethnic communities and to expand resources for all cultures. They want to overcome linguistic barriers and reduce the time it takes citizens to get help for gambling problems. This website was built for ALL Californians and currently offers information in English, Spanish, Chinese, Vietnamese, Hmong, Tagalog and Korean. In some cultures, those with gambling problems may not reach out for help even when that help is free. OPG respects cultural differences and understands concerns over language barriers, especially for newer immigrants. Cultural and linguistic differences should not prevent someone from getting the help they need. Through their website, OPG offers the collective knowledge and skills of authorities and professionals in the prevention and treatment of problem gambling. On this site visitors can access culturally competent programs to help problem gamblers and their families. It is a partnership that will benefit thousands.

Issue: Drunk Driving Prevention
Program: Public File 1
Date: February 10, 2013

Description: The Report Drunk Drivers, anti-DUI effort is a year-round effort by the California Office of Traffic Safety, the California Highway Patrol, and local law enforcement that discourages drivers from drinking while driving, while encouraging drivers to always designate a sober driver and report drunk drivers by calling 911. Although the effort is enforced year-round, an annual DUI Crackdown period occurs in mid-December and continues through the new year. During this time, drivers can expect scheduled DUI checkpoints, roving DUI patrols and enhanced enforcement efforts throughout the state. The crackdown is a statewide effort that spans 42 counties and includes more than 400 law enforcement agencies. The Office of Traffic Safety, California Highway Patrol, and local law enforcement want everyone to drive safely and responsibly. As you travel California's streets and highways, you can do something to help get drunk drivers off the road. Always designate a sober driver, and if you see a drunk driver on the road, call 911. The public can use the emergency number to report and help the CHP identify drunk drivers before it is too late

Issue: Problem Gambling
Program: Public File 1
Date: February 24, 2013

Description: Problem gambling is recognized as a chronic disorder marked by an uncontrollable urge to gamble. The individual cannot stop gambling despite mounting negative consequences to himself/herself. These consequences are usually financial issues that compromise, disrupt or damage personal, family, educational and/or vocational interests. There are many who will experience negative consequences as a result of this insidious disease, including the gamblers themselves, their families and loved ones, and their communities. The OPG's goal is to help problem gamblers and their families by building partnerships in ethnic communities and to expand resources for all cultures. They want to overcome linguistic barriers and reduce the time it takes citizens to get help for gambling problems. This website was built for ALL Californians and currently offers information in English, Spanish, Chinese, Vietnamese, Hmong, Tagalog and Korean. In some cultures, those with gambling problems may not reach out for help even when that help is free. OPG respects cultural differences and understands concerns over language barriers, especially for newer immigrants. Cultural and linguistic differences should not prevent someone from getting the help they need. Through their website, OPG offers the collective knowledge and skills of authorities and professionals in the prevention and treatment of problem gambling. On this site visitors can access culturally competent programs to help problem gamblers and their families. It is a partnership that will benefit thousands.

Issue: Common Human Resource Issues
Program: Public File 2
Date: February 10, 2013

Description: Human resource professionals play an important strategic role in early 21st century businesses. Attracting and retaining talented employees and motivating them to perform at optimum levels are common traits in high-performing companies. HR professionals and management collaborate to overcome some common challenges involved in hiring, training and leading employees. Many of the issues faced by HR professionals are related to the heightened legal challenges faced by companies. Interpreting and working with the Family Medical Leave Act and Fair Labor Standards Act are examples. HR professionals need to be knowledgeable about the ins and outs of employee laws, the education of managers who apply them and the implementation of hiring and management policies that adapt to them. Immigration and diverse workforces have placed more emphasis on citizenship documentation. Distinguishing between independent contract workers and company employees and addressing workplace privacy issues related to technology use present additional legal challenges for HR professionals. HR professionals spend significant time developing hiring processes that emphasize fairness and follow legal requirements. Interview questions are designed to focus specifically on the requirements for a given job. Applications and other screening tools are also job specific. HR professionals train supervisors and hiring managers to consistently follow guidelines and stick to the script when interviewing. Managers who ask questions outside of those asked of all candidates risk getting into trouble with an upset candidate who isn't hired, which causes legal headaches for the company.

Program: Public File 2
Date: January 6, 2013

Description: Larry Crompton was an investigator in California during the late 1970s and '80s during the rein of terror of a man known as the East Area Rapist in Sacramento and Contra Costa counties and the Original Night Stalker in Santa Barbara and Orange counties. The perpetrator of at least 50 rapes and 12 murders has never been caught and was the subject of a May 2009 episode of "True Hollywood Story Investigates," for which Crompton was interviewed. He had written "Sudden Terror," a true crime book about the case. Because he was not involved in the initial rape investigations, they are written from hundreds of reports, notes, memos, newspaper clippings, conversations and interviews with those who were involved. The East Area Rapist forged a trail of terror from Sacramento to San Ramon in the late 1970s, randomly breaking into women's homes and raping them while their husbands were kept silent. Just as suddenly as he began his spree of 40 rapes, the attacker disappeared at the end of the decade without ever being identified. The Original Night Stalker/The East Area Rapist may be considered one of the worst and prolific "unapprehended" serial offenders in history since the Middle Ages. So far in the investigation, every named or investigated suspect has been cleared through DNA, alibi, or other investigative means and methods.

Courage Worldwide (CWW) is an international, 501 c(3) non-profit organization that is building homes around the world for children rescued out of sex trafficking. It is their passion and vision to build Courage Houses in every city that needs one so rescued children will have a safe place to call home. We also want to eradicate sex trafficking completely. With Courage House locations open in Northern California and Tanzania, and with efforts underway to build a home in Hawaii, they are committed to not only rescuing child victims of sex trafficking, but also to restoring their lives. Courage Houses have a comprehensive program that offers a unique life plan for each girl that brings healing to her body, mind, spirit and emotions. Symptoms may be mild, such as numbness in the limbs, or severe, such as paralysis or loss of vision. The progress, severity, and specific symptoms of MS are unpredictable and vary from one person to another. Today, new treatments and advances in research are giving new hope to people affected by the disease. At this time, there are no symptoms, physical findings or laboratory tests that can, by themselves, determine if a person has MS. The doctor uses several strategies to determine if a person meets the long-established criteria for a diagnosis of MS and to rule out other possible causes of whatever symptoms the person is experiencing. Walk MS is the rallying point of the MS movement, creating a community of shared commitment determined to end MS. Walk MS is a day that allows people to come together and celebrate being part of a movement by and for the 400,000 Americans diagnosed with MS.

Many of the issues faced by HR professionals are related to the heightened legal challenges faced by companies. Interpreting and working with the Family Medical Leave Act and Fair Labor Standards Act are examples. HR professionals need to be knowledgeable about the ins and outs of employee laws, the education of managers who apply them and the implementation of hiring and management policies that adapt to them. Immigration and diverse workforces have placed more emphasis on citizenship documentation. Distinguishing between independent contract workers and company employees and addressing workplace privacy issues related to technology use present additional legal challenges for HR professionals. HR professionals spend significant time developing hiring processes that emphasize fairness and follow legal requirements. Interview questions are designed to focus specifically on the requirements for a given job. Applications and other screening tools are also job specific. HR professionals train supervisors and hiring managers to consistently follow guidelines and stick to the script when interviewing. Managers who ask questions outside of those asked of all candidates risk getting into trouble with an upset candidate who isn't hired, which causes legal headaches for the company.

Issue: Catching a Local Rapist
Program: Public File 2
Date: January 6, 2013

Description: Larry Crompton was an investigator in California during the late 1970s and '80s during the rein of terror of a man known as the East Area Rapist in Sacramento and Contra Costa counties and the Original Night Stalker in Santa Barbara and Orange counties. The perpetrator of at least 50 rapes and 12 murders has never been caught and was the subject of a May 2009 episode of "True Hollywood Story Investigates," for which Crompton was interviewed. He had written "Sudden Terror," a true crime book about the case. Because he was not involved in the initial rape investigations, they are written from hundreds of reports, notes, memos, newspaper clippings, conversations and interviews with those who were involved. The East Area Rapist forged a trail of terror from Sacramento to San Ramon in the late 1970s, randomly breaking into women's homes and raping them while their husbands were kept silent. Just as suddenly as he began his spree of 40 rapes, the attacker disappeared at the end of the decade without ever being identified. The Original Night Stalker/The East Area Rapist may be considered one of the worst and prolific "unapprehended" serial offenders in history since the Middle Ages. So far in the investigation, every named or investigated suspect has been cleared through DNA, alibi, or other investigative means and methods.

Issue: Child Sex Trafficking
Program: Public File 2
Date: January 27, 2013

Description: Sex trafficking of children is a global and growing issue. Police and government agencies report they have seen the phenomenon of child sex trafficking increase tenfold over the last two years, and the abuse is still on the rise. The greatest factor in promoting child sex trafficking and child sexual exploitation is the demand for younger and younger victims. Most women in prostitution are trafficked into the sex industry as children. Worldwide, the average age of entrance into prostitution is 13. Courage Worldwide (CWW) is an international, 501 c(3) non-profit organization that is building homes around the world for children rescued out of sex trafficking. It is their passion and vision to build Courage Houses in every city that needs one so rescued children will have a safe place to call home. We also want to eradicate sex trafficking completely. With Courage House locations open in Northern California and Tanzania, and with efforts underway to build a home in Hawaii, they are committed to not only rescuing child victims of sex trafficking, but also to restoring their lives. Courage Houses have a comprehensive program that offers a unique life plan for each girl that brings healing to her body, mind, spirit and emotions. They serve all people regardless of religion, race, ethnicity, age, gender or sexual preference.
